Henninger Named State Individual and Corporate Tax Division Director

Montgomery—State Revenue Commissioner Michael L. Patterson recently announced the appointment of Richard Henninger as director of the Alabama Department of Revenue Individual and Corporate Income Tax Division. Henninger was named director following the May 1 appointment of former Director Cynthia Underwood to the post of State Assistant Revenue Commissioner.

As director of the Individual and Corporate Tax Division, Henninger will oversee the administration and collection of some $2.5 billion in tax revenue, including individual and corporate income, business privilege, estate, and financial institutions' excise taxes.

Henninger, a 27-year career employee, began his career with the Revenue Department in 1974 as a Revenue field examiner. In March 1989, he was named district coordinator of the Montgomery Taxpayer Service Center and served in that capacity until 1996, when promoted to manager of the Individual Income Tax Section. In October 1997, he was named assistant director of the Individual and Corporate Tax Division and held that position until his appointment as director May 1, 2001.

“Richard brings years of valuable experience to his new job. His commitment to a job well done and his leadership style set high standards within the department. We welcome him to our senior management team,” State Revenue Commissioner Michael L. Patterson said, commenting on Henninger’s appointment.
